

Sample Quotations and Paraphrases

Let's say you're writing a paper on Cinderella Man, and your stance is that it is an excellent movie. Below is a note card that you might use to help support a paragraph on Ron Howard's directing (keep in mind that it is a boxing movie, so "the ring" refers to the action in a boxing movie):

I. B. Action Scenes 3 "Ron Howard isn't the most agile director in the ring, but he knows how to build suspense, and he smartly keeps the fight scenes bearably bloody." p. 104
---

And here is the works cited entry for this source:

Roberts, Rex. "Cinderella Man." Film Journal International, July 2005, pp. 103-104.

Following are some possible ways you could use this note card in your paragraph. I have included quotations and paraphrases and the correct internal citation for each. Note the ways that the critic can be referenced in a lead or paraphrase, but also note that you do not have to include the critic in your text at all.

- Film Journal International critic, Rex Roberts says that, although Ron Howard is not known for his skill with boxing movies, he creates strong suspense and maintains an appropriate level of violence (104).
- Although Ron Howard is not known for his skill with boxing movies, he "knows how to build suspense, and he smartly keeps the fight scenes bearably bloody" (Roberts 104).
- Although Ron Howard is not known for his skill with boxing movies, he shows that he knows how to create suspense and maintain an appropriate level of violence (Roberts 104).
- Film Journal International critic, Rex Roberts says, "Howard knows how to build suspense, and he smartly keeps the fight scenes bearably bloody" (104).
- Critic Rex Roberts points out that although Ron Howard is not known for his skill with boxing movies, his skill as a filmmaker is clearly demonstrated in this movie: "Ron Howard [...] knows how to build suspense, and he smartly keeps the fight scenes bearably bloody" (104).